Visegrad Youth for Climate Action

The UN's biggest annual climate conference, COP24, will take place in the Visegrad Group member Poland this December.

As the United Nations Youth Delegates of Poland, Hungary and the Czech Republic, we believe this is an exciting opportunity for us, young people to engage with the UN's climate-related activities and become active in the fight against climate change.

Therefore, we founded the youth forum Visegrad Youth for Climate Action (VYCA). VYCA is a series of one-day youth conferences taking place in Hungary, the Czech Republic and Poland.

So, if...

you are a young person aged 16-26 years, you would like to get first-hand experience on how the UN's climate negotiations work, and you are interested to find out how you can contribute to the UN's climate-related activities,

we invite you to come and join us during the VYCA conference in Budapest!

Budapest

Time:

22 September 2018

10.00–17.00

Venue:

Mathias Corvinus Collegium (MCC) - Somlói út 51, Budapest 1016, Hungary

The event is free for all.

Register today if you would like to come!

During the event, you can learn about the effects of climate change and how Hungary and the EU are involved in the UN's climate negotiations, you can participate in an interactive climate negotiation simulation where you can get first-hand experience on how international climate agreements come into existence, and you can also hear about how you can become active in the fight against climate change and how you can contribute to the UN's climate-related efforts.
